

Input for the UPR 14th Session on Pakistan

- The Government should ensure that any anti-terror legislation contains safeguards for children
- The Government should take effective measures to protect children from grave violations of human rights through the thorough investigation of human rights violations and the prompt prosecution of perpetrators
- The Government should strengthen its current efforts to address the recruitment of children into armed groups and their use in hostilities
- The Government should investigate allegations of use of schools by armed groups influenced by and/or associated with the Taliban or Al-Qaida, including the Tehrik-i-Taliban Pakistan (TTP)