Corporal punishment of children breaches their rights to respect for human dignity and physical integrity and to equal protection under the law. It is recognised by the Committee on the Rights of the Child and other treaty bodies, as well as by the UN Secretary General’s Study on Violence against Children, as a highly significant issue, both for asserting children’s status as rights holders and for the prevention of all forms of violence.

The Global Initiative to End All Corporal Punishment of Children (www.endcorporalpunishment.org) has been regularly briefing the Committee on the Rights of the Child on this issue since 2002, and since 2004 has similarly briefed the Committee Against Torture, the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women, the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, and the Human Rights Committee. There is growing progress now across all regions in challenging this very common form of violence against children. But we are concerned that many States persist in ignoring treaty body recommendations to prohibit and eliminate all corporal punishment. We hope that the UPR Process will give particular attention to states’ response, or lack of response, to the concluding observations from treaty bodies, on this and other key issues.

In June 2006, the Committee on the Rights of the Child adopted General Comment No. 8 on “The right of the child to protection from corporal punishment and other cruel or degrading forms of punishment”, which emphasises the immediate obligation on states parties to prohibit all corporal punishment of children, including within the home. Other treaty bodies, and regional human rights mechanisms, have condemned all corporal punishment. In October 2006, the report of the UN Secretary General’s Study on Violence against Children was submitted to the General Assembly. It recommends universal prohibition of all corporal punishment as a matter of priority.

Summary
This briefing describes the legality of corporal punishment of children in Liberia despite the recommendations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child. We hope the Review will highlight the importance of prohibition of corporal punishment of children, including within the family, and strongly recommend that the Government enact and implement legislation to ensure complete prohibition.
1 Legality of corporal punishment in Liberia

1.1 Corporal punishment is lawful in the home. Provisions against violence and abuse in the Penal Code (1976) and the Constitution (1986) are not interpreted as prohibiting corporal punishment of children. A new Children’s Act was passed in 2009 but we have no details of its provisions.

1.2 Corporal punishment is lawful in schools. We have been unable to ascertain if it is prohibited in the new Children’s Act.

1.3 In the penal system, corporal punishment is unlawful as a sentence for crime. It is explicitly prohibited as a disciplinary measure in prisons in the Criminal Procedure Code, but we have no information regarding its legality in other institutions accommodating children in conflict with the law.

1.4 Corporal punishment is lawful in alternative care settings.

2 Recommendations by human rights treaty monitoring bodies

2.1 Following examination of the state party’s initial report in 2004, the Committee on the Rights of the Child recommended that the Government of Liberia explicitly prohibit corporal punishment in all settings, including in the family (CRC/C/15/Add.236, para. 43).
